I. INTRODUCTION: THEATRE'S "COLOSSAL GENDER GAP"

Efforts to analyze the status of women in theatre have been prominent in recent years for good reason: male voices dominate theatre seasons and positions of power in theatre. Pia Catton observed a "sad truth" about the 2012 Tony Awards: "While Tonys are equally bestowed on male and female stars of the stage," she wrote, "there's a colossal gender gap in the honors given to the men and women who create the shows."¹

The 2014 Tony telecast on June 8, 2014 inspired weary and impassioned reflections² from playwright Lynn Nottage. "Almost every year," she wrote, "I have to manage my disappointment, not because the shows aren't good (which occasionally they are) but rather because the shows are by and large written from one perspective: the white male." Reflecting specifically on her reactions as a woman and a Tony voter, she added: "Broadway is a closed ecosystem. It is dispiriting and quite frankly infuriating for those of us who participate in the voting process. It sometimes feels as if we're being asked to assemble a guest list for a party to which we're not invited."

A number of efforts have emerged to count, study, analyze and report on the status of women in theatre, providing pieces of the current picture.³ These efforts often focus on playwrights and directors, including the landmark 2002 *Report on the Status of Women*⁴ for the New York State Council on the Arts Theatre Program. Occasional national surveys⁵ conducted by the University of Iowa Stage Management program have tracked the gender balance in stage management – currently 70% female nationwide. A recent examination of the *Internet Broadway Database*⁶ highlights the fact that 14% of the 2012-2013 Broadway productions were directed by women. Gender parity counting efforts in selected regions – including Washington DC⁷, San Francisco⁸ and LA⁹ –

Awards – named for Lillian Hellman – have honored the work of women in theatre since 2010.

now track productions, playwrights and directors. And the Women's Leadership Study focuses on gender and leadership in residential nonprofit theatres.¹⁰

Playwright Laura Shamas outlined in a recent HowlRound essay¹¹ her unsuccessful efforts to locate consistently collected numbers on women playwrights. "In 2013, I tried to get accurate figures about women playwrights working in New York, at levels other than Broadway. I was unable to find this information, because no organization was funded to count it." Shamas issued a call to action. "Is there really no institution in 2014 that will sponsor an ongoing annual study of American women playwrights working in theater seasons around the country (and directors, producers, designers, for that matter)?"

The League of Professional Theatre Women (LPTW) has stepped up to meet this challenge to count playwrights – and directors, producers, designers and others – at some of the Off-Broadway venues for which statistics have been elusive. LPTW Board member Judith Binus, a veteran stage manager, began in 2013 to collect data on basic personnel for a number of Off-Broadway theatres beginning with the 2010-2011 season. Fellow LPTW member Martha Wade Steketee – dramaturg, critic, researcher and editor – joined Binus some months into the project, assisted with expanding the number of companies and productions covered, led the analyses and took on report writing duties.

This report of selected findings from the ongoing LPTW data collection effort adds several dimensions to current studies on the status of women in theatre. Here we analyze employment in a broader-than-usual range of roles and provide an explicit focus on Off-Broadway productions for 4 complete seasons, 2010-2011 through 2013-2014.

II. PRODUCTIONS INCLUDED IN THE STUDY 2010-2014

The LPTW Women Hired Off-Broadway study includes four (4) seasons of production hiring information, involving three hundred and fifty-five (355) productions from twenty-two (22) theatre companies consistently producing Off-Broadway. Future reports may expand the scope of theatres covered and professional categories tracked.

Table 1 summarizes the numbers of productions reviewed, listed by theatre company, for each study season.

Note that these findings from the most recently completed four theatrical seasons illustrate several time-specific phenomena that affect production counts. Several theatres engaged in and completed major building and remodeling efforts, including The Pearl, The Public and Signature Theatre. In addition, some major co-production efforts and repertory events increased season totals for some theatres, such as Rattlestick's produced set of Lucy Thurber plays in 2013-2014, and the four Apple Family Plays produced in repertory at the Public during 2013-2014.

Co-productions are "credited" to one of the producing companies to clarify our report table analyses – productions are counted only once, not once for each co-producer. Refer to Appendix I for study definitions and source details and Appendix II for a full listing of all the productions included in our analyses, listed by theatre and by season, and notes about co-productions.

III. EMPLOYMENT CATEGORIES INCLUDED IN THE STUDY BY GENDER 2010-2014

Tables that follow provide summary reports for each of thirteen categories currently tracked in the LPTW study for twenty-two Off-Broadway venues for report seasons 2010-2011 through 2013-2014. The professional roles tracked and analyzed in this report include: Playwright, Director, Set Designer, Lighting Designer, Costume Designer, Sound Designer, Projection / Video Designer, Choreographer, Composer / Original Music, Lyricist, Conductor / Music Director, Production Stage Manager and Stage Manager / Assistant Stage Manager. Additional professional roles may be tracked in future study stages.

In each of the employment categories in the tables that follow, individual productions may hire multiple individuals or no individuals at all. The “total” or denominator for any category percentage calculation is the total of women and men identified as employed in that role in the specified season for all of the productions included in the current study. As a result, this denominator will be a number sometimes quite different from the total number of productions in any report season.

This report provides season summaries and no theatre-specific results, by employment categories.

APPENDIX I: STUDY DEFINITIONS AND SOURCES

Which companies and venues are tracked in the study and this report?

- The productions of twenty-two (22) Off-Broadway theatres are included in the project database and in this report. Several production companies in the study produce both On-Broadway and Off-Broadway; only Off-Broadway venues are included. Lincoln Center Theater (LCT) numbers include Mitzi Newhouse and LCT3 productions (at Duke on 42nd and at the Tow), Manhattan Theatre Club numbers include New York City Center I and II productions, and Roundabout Theatre numbers include Laura Pels and Steinberg Black Box productions.

Which productions are included in the study?

- A full listing of productions included in this report is included as Appendix II.
- Co-productions are counted only once in our database, while co-production credit is retained as a note on the production. For example, the Public Theater - Signature Theatre coproduction of "The Intelligent Homosexual's Guide" in 2011-2012 is included as a Public Theater production and is not counted in Signature totals. The resulting overall study season totals of productions include co-productions only once.
- The database currently does not include reading series or short term festivals. For example, The Marathon at EST, COIL, and Under the Radar festivals are not included in the current report.

Who is tracked in the study?

- Thirteen (13) total professional roles are tracked for every production researched, and all persons named in every category are counted (with the exceptions noted below): Playwright, Director, Choreographer, Composer / Original Music, Lyricist, Conductor / Music Director, Set Designer, Lighting Designer, Costume Designer, Sound Designer, Projection / Video Designer, Production Stage Manager, and Stage Manager / Assistant Stage Manager.
- Some production calculations reflect simplified counts. For example, the all-male Broken Chord and Acme Sound design companies are recorded with as a single "male" sound designer count for computational purposes. Other companies with a mix of genders and representing large numbers of individuals are sometimes represented with a single male and a single female count for calculations and percentages. Several productions involving extremely large numbers of playwrights are represented by a single count of the appropriate gender (or one of each of men and women if both genders were involved) for the current report – to do otherwise would seriously skew the employment picture for that particular institution and production year. In particular, several productions with large numbers of playwrights receive simplified counts in the project database in several categories: "The Mysteries" (Flea Theatre) 2013-2014 involved 48 playwrights; "Motherhood Out Loud" (Primary Stages) 2011-2012 involved 14 playwrights; and "We Play for the Gods" (Women's Project) 2012-2013 involved 7 writers and 4 directors. (These particular productions could merit separate analyses at some point.)

What is a season in this study?

- A study "season" follows the major awards season definition of May through the following April. Project researchers assigned a production to a season based on production opening date rather than a theatre's definition of its own season, which can vary from theatre to theatre.
- A production is counted in the season in which it opened, assigned by opening date.

What data sources are used in the study?

- Production-specific details for the project database are collected from production playbills, season announcements, theatre web sites, published production reviews, on-line databases such the Lortel Archives Internet Off-Broadway Database (iobdb.com), personal professional networks such as LinkedIn (linkedin.com), and personal communications with theatre staff.
